The President's Perspective

This Is On Us

I have written on several occasions about the importance of the public schools in St. Joseph. We are fortunate to have some very fine private schools here, but without a strong public school system, our community suffers. Case in point, over the last several months I have become aware of at least a half-dozen senior management people relocating for jobs in St. Joseph who have decided to live in the north Kansas City area because of the schools here. These are just the ones that I have heard of. When asked what is the problem with St. Joseph schools, they talk about stories on the Internet.

First, let me say we need to get over the blame game. Changes have been made and people have left the district. Blame has now become an excuse not to do anything, and that's a problem. As a community, we need to move on and focus on making our school district better.

Next, we need to get involved. The school district is going through a very important engagement process and is asking for the community to come forward to discuss future challenges and opportunities. Attend one of these meetings and ask the administration about finances, what they have done to improve efficiencies and how they have addressed decision-making transparency. Then tell them what you would like to see for the future, new programs, new facilities, smaller class sizes and perhaps more focus on vocational/technical education. This is your opportunity to shape the future of education in St. Joseph. If blame is still your game, then attend a meeting and blame someone. Maybe you will get it out of your system.

With this input, the School Board will need to decide the way forward. I expect based on my understanding of school finances, a revenue issue will be considered in the future. This will require that a plan be developed outlining exactly how funds will be spent and the expected outcomes. All of this must come from a community wide process so residents can understand and accept what needs to be done.

The situation with our schools must be fixed. This is on us as a community. No one is going to help us, we must be willing to step up and be part of the solution, be engaged and be willing, when the time comes, to do what is right for the future of our school system. Over the last several months, I have seen what the future could look like with people locating to Kansas City. This is a future St. Joseph can't afford or allow. It's on us to fix the problem!
